A BOUQUET.

FOR MISS S. FANNIE-KELLOGG.

Now Fannie, dear—I'll far and near,
Roam o'er the woods to-day;
And flowers break
For your sweet sake,
And bind in a bright bouquet.

Within the wood,
Where once there stood
A shepherd's cottage home;
'Tis there I know
The daisies grow,
And yield their rich perfume.

Beside the lake,
By the ferns and brake,
With graceful bow and nod;
All richly dressed
In yellow vest,
I find the Golden Rod.

Away from here—
Not far nor near,
The Christ's sweet flowers blow;
Of the wood—Anemone,
And silver vest,
And purple crest.

This modest flower is known,
Then on I go—
A step or so,
To a bunch of asters, bright,
The humming-birds sip
From their crimson lips.

And now—ah, me—
Oh! there, I see,
They still are wet with dew,
One branch I'll break
For your sweet sake,
Of these flowers, just tipped with blue.

Now, by your leave—
These flowers I'll weave,
Into a garland fair;
Richer than gems,
Or the diamonds,
That shine in royal hair.

These other flowers—
In golden showers,
I'll scatter o'er your path;
That you may know,
When'er you go,
That peace and angel hush.

*The chrysanthemum is sometimes called "Christ's flower," because, when it blooms, it does not bloom until December, the period of Christ's nativity.

—In the prime of Christmas time
The Christ's sweet flowers blow.

PROSPECT IN CASE OF AN ARMISTICE.
The Richmond Examiner, Jeff Davis' own organ, under date of August 17th, tells us on what terms the rebels will agree to a peace. The Copperheads may be ready to delude themselves by a compromise, but not so will any man who has one spark of pride or patriotism.

Here are the terms:
"If the North desires to have negotiations for reunion entered upon at all, let all troops and blockading fleets be withdrawn and the right of secession formally acknowledged, and then negotiations would be at least possible. If they invite us to negotiate on any other footing, our only rational answer would be another blow at the heart of Pennsylvania."

What are we to think of the cowardly rascals who avow themselves ready to negotiate with the rebels on such terms as these?—[Napa Register.]

PEACE, in the present status of the controversy and the rebellion, is impossible. If two-thirds of the loyal population really desired it, let them be brought up face to face with the inevitable conditions and sequences of peace now, and they would draw back with dismay and with sacred rage, and a cry would go up from millions of men able and ready to bear arms. "There is no peace possible, unless the nation is ready for suicide; forward to Richmond; no more work by dribbles; trample the batteries of Manassas; sweep the valley of Virginia to Tennessee; a thousand ships, if need be, to New Orleans; a deluge of soldiers down the Mississippi; grind the rebellion with an ananconda that can knot his folds; and up with the old flag from the Potomac to the Rio Grande!"

—[Starr King.]

A little frowzy Copperhead, who eats dirt for the Dixie lawyers of this county complains that the County Judge has stabbed him in the pocket. That's the place to hit him. A prick in the pocket loosens his gas, and will eventually shorten his breath. Let all other Union men go and do likewise, and the door of many a Copperhead shebang would be closed till after the wind is knocked out of the rebellion. —[Downsville Messenger.]

SPIDER CAPTURING A SNAKE.—The Orleans (New York) Republican relates that one day ex-Controller Lorenzo Burrows discovered, in a building belonging to him, a small snake suspended by the neck under a shelf. On examination the suspension proved to be accomplished by nothing more substantial than the threads of a spider's web. The main web or nest of the spider was just under the shelf, perhaps two and a half feet from the floor. From this depended a cable formed of a number of strands, and from this hung the snake. The upper half of the snake's body seemed to be wound around with a tiny thread, which was so tightly drawn around his head and throat as to prevent the reptile opening his mouth. Having thus secured him, the spider seemed intent on drawing his prey up to his net, and when discovered had so far succeeded as to have half the length of the snake from the floor. The snake manifested its dislike of the treatment by occasional violent struggles, in which he would spring from the floor and exert his utmost powers to break his filmy bands. The struggles were very complacently and unconcernedly watched by the spider from his nest above. The snake was about a foot in length, and the spider was by no means a large specimen of the species. The apparently unequal struggle was witnessed by more than one hundred persons during the day, attracted by the report of the singular contest. But that the cable was accidentally broken by a person who entered the room, the spider would undoubtedly have drawn the snake to his den. This singular case presents double room for wonder—"first at the strategy" of the spider in getting his coils about the snake, and second at the wonderful strength evinced in drawing up a reptile at least one hundred times his weight.

THE ANTIQUITIES OF GERMANY.—Discoveries are frequently made in the Swiss and German lakes of old buildings and utensils. The London Athenaeum says:

Further accounts are given, in the Bavarian Gazette, of the discoveries of lake-houses in Starnburg. Professor Wagner declares that the pile buildings date from the Bronze age—not the Age of Bronze of Byron, but the one which preceded the Celto-Germanic Iron age.

The hypothesis of Professor Desor, that they belong to the Stone age, has not been confirmed by the discovery of any arms or implements of firestone or serpentine, though a bone knife handle which has been found is stated to be identical with the bone handles of fire stone knives found in the Lake of Neufchatel, and on the island itself in laying the foundations of a building, a spearhead of firestone was discovered. It would therefore seem that two or three periods are represented by the lake house of Starnburg. Similar discoveries have been made in the Chiemeer, in the lake of Soom, which lies a little to the north of Chiemeer and has an especial interest for English readers, as the opening scenes of "The Initials" are laid there, and in the Ammersee, which is fed by the stream of the Ammergau of the passion plays. But in none of these lakes has there been as yet any great haul of antiquities, though perhaps, the latter Autumn months, when the water is lower and clearer, may be more favorable. The work of dredging goes on but slowly, and much time elapsed before many of the curiosities found in the Swiss lakes saw the light. Bones and potsherd, and "kitchen-stuff" of the old inhabitants of the lake-houses, have generally been the first to appear; in one lake, large piles, evidently worked with iron, and forming the remains of a bridge from the main land to an island seemed to belong to the time of the Romans.

A CENTENARIAN.—Mrs. Attwood—whose maiden name was Sarah McComber—residing in Myrickville, Massachusetts, will be one hundred and two years old if she lives until the 17th inst. The Taunton Gazette describes a visit recently paid the venerable lady, whose faculties, memory included, are good. In course of conversation she referred to old revolutionary times, and contrasted them with the present period somewhat in favor of the latter. She said her sister went to New Bedford to buy a calico dress for a daughter; she got a coarse piece of goods, such as no one would wear now, and had to pay four shillings a yard for it—sixty-seven cents of our money. Corn then sold briskly for three dollars a bushel; this was in a scarcity occasioned by the destruction of the crops by the weather. She said a man came all the way from Freetown to obtain employment for the sake of providing food for his family. He offered to work for her father for a peck of corn a day, and did work a week for half a bushel a day, which he carried home on his back. But in the midst of all these trials the people were cheerful, spirited and fertile in expedients. They made cornstark molasses and pumpkin molasses; they did all they could to live and make their lives serviceable to the country. —[Boston Journal, Aug. 18.]

ROMANTIC.—Captain Wood of the privateer Tallahassee, reminds us of one of Byron's heroes, who was

"As mild a mannered man
As ever scuttled ship or cut a throat."
His victims represent him as giving audience while cosily seated in an armchair, on the main deck; affably conversing with them; regretting the painful necessity of setting ships on fire, and turning loads of emigrants adrift on the first scow that comes along, without provisions or water. The Captain of the brig Billow, though a sufferer from the Tallahassee, testifies to the Captain's amiable manners and conversational powers; also, to his moral character in not allowing swearing on board. This is all very romantic—just the stuff for a sea novel—but Captain Wood talks and brags too much to be a model privateersman. That tongue of his will get him into trouble yet. A man so given to garrulity cannot be a good naval commander.

THE GRASS VALLEY NATIONAL says a bet was made there on Monday that McClellan would carry San Francisco by five thousand majority. The poor fool of a Copperhead will doubtless try to crawl out of the wager, on the ground that he was drunk or crazy when he made it.

RAISING THE FINZ.—At the first District Court held in this (Colorado) Territory, Hon. Allen Bradford presiding, I was foreman of the United States Court jury. An honest Dutchman, Jan Jakes, lives on a farm near the road, and keeps a tavern, where detachment officers and soldiers paused often to refresh. Jan was brought up for selling whiskey to soldiers, and plead guilty, but said: "Mr. Shudge, I bought every body trunks, and sell the whiskey to every body?" "Well, said the Judge, 'as you did not know it was against the law, I will fine you ten dollars and let you off.' 'Dat is coot, Mr. Shudge, but I is got no money.' As Jan was known to be honest, he was allowed to depart; and in half an hour he came back with a roll of bills in his hand, and said, Mr Shudge, I pay you now. I win forty dollars from you officer, and I thank you vunce more; coot-bye, Mr. Shudge!"

MAINE.—In the next Congress the Union men will have the entire delegation by members. This is a gain of one, L. D. Sweet, Copperhead, having been elected in 1863, by 127 majority from the First District. We would gain more had had there been any more to gain.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA IN 1813.—The following is from the London Times of March 13, 1813:

"The public will learn with sentiments which we will not presume to anticipate, that a third British frigate has struck to an American. This is an occurrence that calls for serious reflection—this together with the fact stated in our paper of yesterday that Lloyd's list contains notices of upwards of five hundred British vessels captured in seven months by the Americans. Five hundred merchantmen and three frigates, (Aye, and three sloops of war.)

"Can these statements be true; and can the English people hear them unmoved? Any one who had predicted such a result of an American war this time last year, would have been treated as a madman or a traitor. He would have been told, if his opponents had condescended to argue with him, that long ere seven months had elapsed the American flag would be swept from the seas, the contemptible navy of the United States annihilated, and their maritime arsenals rendered a heap of ruins.

"Yet down to this minute not a single American frigate has struck her flag. They insult us and laugh at our want of enterprise and vigor. They leave their ports when they please, and return to them when it suits their convenience; they traverse the Atlantic, they beset the West India Islands, they advance to the very chops of the channel, they parade along the coasts of South America—nothing chases, nothing intercepts, nothing engages them, but to yield them triumph."

THE STABLE—eleven thorough-bred English horses—of the late Baron de Salomon de Rothschild, were sold at auction in Paris a few weeks ago. No wonder the young man died of disease of the heart! He could not live without intense emotions frequently renewed. Gambling on "Change" and at the card table were his favorite amusements, and it was to cure him of those fatal sports that his father, Baron James de Rothschild, sent him to America some years since. He had lost $240,000 in one speculation on "Change." His father shipped him at six hours' notice, and refused to allow him to leave America until he promised that he would not indulge again in stock gambling. But the young man could not resist the temptation of excitement, and, despite his promise, he would gamble. This greatly distressed his father, and more than once produced temporary coolness between them. Every day three carriages would stand before the young man's door from three of the afternoon till one o'clock at night. If the weather was fair he would go to the Bois de Boulogne after the opera and ride about there until twelve or one o'clock at night. Nature, who made night for rest, cannot be violated with impunity. It is mentioned, to show the free use of his purse, that when he was so unexpectedly shipped to America, his friends of the Jockey Club owed him $20,000, and it is said that after his death it was discovered that they owed him $40,000.

NO ARMISTICE.—The Union State Central Committee published the following on Sunday morning. The "gentleman of high standing" is Thompson Campbell:

"As one of the proprietors of the Evening Bulletin, in two letters from New York, published in this evening's issue of that paper, has made certain statements and imitations, the effect of which, if allowed to remain uncontroverted, might be to discourage the friends of the Government, I have been instructed by the Executive Committee of the State Central Committee to say, upon the authority of a gentleman of high standing in this State, who returned from Washington by the last steamer, that it is not true, as is intimated in one of the letters referred to, that any proposition for an armistice of the land forces now engaged in hostilities is likely to be entertained by the President; and that it is untrue and preposterously absurd that the letter of Mr. Lincoln, dated July 13th 1864, and addressed 'To all whom it may concern,' is, as stated in the said letters, deemed by Union men as in any wise likely to peril his reelection. In this connection, I take the liberty to call the attention of the Union men of the State to the fact that the recent glorious victories in Maine and Vermont were achieved sometime after the publication of the letter of Mr. Lincoln 'To all whom it may concern.'"

SMASHED.—P. J. Devine, the sculptor, among his works of art on exhibition at the San Francisco Mechanics' Fair, had a bust of that old Copperhead, John B. Weller, placed by the side of Broderick's and Starr King's! Somebody thought it ought not to be in the place it occupied, and therefore "busted" it.—[Boe.]

AN HONEST DEACON.—Deacon N— was an honest old codger, a kind neighbor, a good Christian, but lack-a-day! the deacon would occasionally get exceedingly "mellow," and almost every Sunday at dinner he would indulge in his favorite cider brandy to such an extent that it was with difficulty he reached his pew in the broad aisle, near the pulpit, and between the minister's and the village squire's. One Sunday morning the parson told his flock that he should preach a sermon touching many glaring sins so conspicuous among them, and he hoped they would listen attentively and not flinch if he happened to be severe. The afternoon came, and the house was full; everybody turned out to hear their neighbors "dressed down" by the minister, who, after well opening his sermon, commenced upon the transgressors with a loud voice, with the question:

"Where is the drunkard?"
A solemn pause succeeded the inquiry, when up rose Deacon N—, his face red from frequent draughts of his favorite drink, and steadying himself as well as he could by the pew rail, looked up to the parson, and replied in a trembling and piping voice:

"Here I am."
Of course a consternation in the congregation was the result of the honest deacon's response; however the parson went on with his remarks as he had written them, commenting severely upon the drunkards, and closed by warning them to forsake at once such evil habits, if they would seek salvation and flee from the coming wrath. The deacon then made a low bow and seated himself.

"And now," asked the preacher in his loudest tones, "where is the hypocrite?"
A pause, but no one responded. Eyes were turned upon this and that man; but the most glances seemed directed to the squire's pew, and indeed the parson seemed to squint hard in that direction. The deacon saw where the shaft was aimed, or where it should be aimed, and rising once more, leaned over his pew to the squire, whom he tapped on the shoulder, and thus addressed him:

"Come, squire, why don't you stand up? I did when he called on me."

TERRIBLE SCENE IN AN ITALIAN COURT.—A fearful dramatic scene took place the other day at the Court of Asia, at Chieti, where the famous brigand, Salvatore Scenna, was on his trial for a long catalogue of misdeeds, including assassinations, rape and arson, perpetrated during the course of a long career of guilt. Sentence was pronounced in the usual manner, amidst the breathless silence of the present. Scenna was condemned to death, three of his accomplices to twenty years at the galleys, and the four remaining prisoners were acquitted. A hum of applause followed the reading of the sentence, and the judges retired, leaving the condemned men in the hands of the force. Scenna appeared to be utterly stupefied and unmanned by the just severity of his sentence; but on the approach of the carabinieri to replace the fetters upon his wrists he threw a rapid glance around him, with a sudden bound cleared the partition of the prisoners' dock, and in spite of a bayonet wound hurriedly inflicted on his passage by one of the soldiers, made his way to the window climbed up with the agility of a cat, and flung himself down into the street. A dull crash was heard from without, and those who had hurried out of the court to see what had taken place found Scenna writhing in a pool and breathing his last. The remaining prisoners took advantage of the confusion and made a desperate effort to escape, but they were speedily overpowered and carried back to prison.

Company D, First Cavalry, C. V., was left by Lieut. Pomeroy at Fort Whipple. A detachment of his company had gone to Grand River to be there discharged, and about 20 would be discharged at Fort Whipple on the 9th inst. Company F First Infantry, C. V., also went from Fort Whipple to the Rio Grande, but a detachment of 16 men remained at the fort to be discharged on the 29th ultimo. There was also left at Fort Whipple, Company F, Fifth Regiment U. S. Infantry.

SMASHED.—P. J. Devine, the sculptor, among his works of art on exhibition at the San Francisco Mechanics' Fair, had a bust of that old Copperhead, John B. Weller, placed by the side of Broderick's and Starr King's! Somebody thought it ought not to be in the place it occupied, and therefore "busted" it.—[Boe.]

"IS THERE a Difference between Mc-Clellan and Lincoln?" [Dem. Press.]

Is virtue, vice? or fire, ice? or treason, patriotism? Is winter, summer? or folly, wisdom? or night, day?

What a question to be asked? Lincoln arrested Alcatraz Weller, but Mc-

Clellan arrested a whole State Legislature. Beriah Brown of the Press, (if one judges by its columns) acts upon the principle of the old French philosopher, who called mankind "a pot, and wise men were allowed to pull its ears," but such questions bespeak him not a wise man, for any fool knows there is this difference, Lincoln is an honest man, a patriot, and President of the United States, and McClellan is not the first nor the second, and cannot be the third.

A CONCEDED FACT.—A Copperhead exchange says, "it is not a conceded fact that the abolitionists concerned this war?" First, it is not a conceded fact;

second, it is not a fact of any kind; third,

if it had not been for slavery, there would have been no abolitionists, and fourth, if it is a conceded fact that the abolitionists commenced this war, then there is but one parallel case in all history, and that is when Abel commenced his fanatical war upon Cain, his brother.

In examining the records and writings of modern copperheadism, one feels like praying for "a forty paces power," to preach the praise of hypocrisy and cant.

FREE SPEECH.—It is funny to hear the sapient Cops, curse the power that presents them from calling Lincoln "a bigger traitor than Jeff Davis," and the present administration "and abolition despotism," and "Abraham the 1st" a

"tyrant" and this present war "a bloodthirsty war" &c. That they use the above and similar expression, is the best refutation of their own supposed grievances. The Democrats of the present school are a cursing set, and the modern democratic party is a cursed party.

Littlismack may perhaps carry

New Jersey on his shoulders, and may also make a scratch and carry Connecticut, but aside from these two States he will have to do some heavy swearing to prove that he was "a candidate this year for another position than salt-maker general to preserve the great fun-changing Democracy for future infamy.

BIDWELL.—The straight-forward practical sense of General Bidwell is being spoken of by our cotemporary sheets, and his speeches, founded upon the truth,

go home to the masses with irresistible force; his opponent's Temple, is based upon the sands of false doctrine, and must go under.

REVIEW OF THE FAIR.

The Sixth Annual Fair of the Plumas County Agricultural Society closed on the 7th inst., and in all respects was a decided success. The exhibition, when the drouth and the frosts during the last season are taken into consideration was a very honorable one. We here with give some of the most prominent features of the exhibition.

Among the exhibition of fruits, we noticed the collection of apples and peaches, from the New England Ranch. (D. R. Cate.) There were 13 varieties of apples, and six varieties of peaches in his collection, and was, without doubt the finest display of fruit ever exhibited in this county and would have been a credit to any of our lower counties.

R. Irwin of Rich Bar exhibited a fine collection of grapes, and the "premium peaches," a splendid exhibit, he also had a collection of apples and figs, and also a sample of tobacco on exhibition, the tobacco was raised, cured and pressed at Rich Bar in this county, and was equal in all respects to the best ever raised in the "old Dominion."

George Martin and two or three other of our citizens also had a variety of fruits on exhibition.

Some very large tomatoes were placed on exhibition by J. Dow and Geo. Martin.

Of vegetables and farm product J. W. Thompson of the Illinois Ranch, D. R. Cate, Geo. Martin, J. H. Yeates, Jas. G. Maxwell, W. S. Dean, J. C. Church, and J. T. Taylor had each a fine collection on exhibition. It would be impossible to enumerate or give a list of every article in their collections. But those of our readers, who visited the Pavilion will no doubt agree with us when we say that the farmers of Plumas Co. can and do raise as good if not better vegetables than any other section of this State.

The collection of minerals was small, in fact entirely too small for Plumas Co., for without doubt, our county can eclipse any other county in the State in the variety and richness of ores, gold bearing quartz and minerals of all kinds. We would suggest to our citizens who are interested in our mining prosperity that they preserve choice specimens of ores &c., so that at the next meeting of the society the mineralogical display will be such as to do justice to the mineral resources of Plumas.

A. J. Ford of Indian Valley had the best and largest collection on exhibition. Most of the specimens were taken from the Union mining district in Light's Canon. One large specimen from the Superior Copper Co., taken from a shaft 55 feet deep was rich in copper.

The Cosmopolitan, and Mountain Meadow Co's., also exhibited several fine samples of copper ore from their respective claims.

F. B. Whiting had a splendid lot of Japanese and China goods on exhibition.

The walls of the Pavilion were decorated with a number of large pictures placed there by some of the members of the society.

Wm. Kinsey placed on exhibition a variety of cabinet work which received and deserved a premium, for the workmanship was excellent.

Brown & Shives of Taylorville, and Walker of Quincy, each exhibited specimens of Blacksmith work.

The exhibition of stock was very good, but the trouble and expense of bringing it from a distance and keeping it during the fair, prevents a large number of our citizens from placing their stock upon exhibition and competing for the premiums.

Among other articles on exhibition, we noticed a keg of lager beer, from the brewery of Neisman & Schlatter. Also a number of jars of preserves, pickles, catsup. Timothy and hay seed, oats, flour, wheat, wool, fowls, &c., &c.

The exhibition by the ladies, was the best ever had at any meeting of the Society, and as it is impossible for us to give a perfect list of the articles, and by whom placed on exhibition, we have concluded to be impartial, and not attempt to particularize or comment upon any, although all of them were deserving a special notice.

In looking over the list of entries, we were surprised to see that so few of the citizens of Indian Valley, had articles on exhibition, but as the next Fair will be held at Taylorville we presume that the citizens of that place will take more interest in the success of the Society and have an exhibition which will surpass any former one given by the Society.

Too much praise cannot be given to the ladies, for the interest taken by them in aid of the Society. And our citizens generally have done all in their power toward making the Fair a success.

To the officers of the Society, Messrs. J. W. Thompson, J. E. Edwards, and D. R. Cate, we would return our thanks for the numerous favors shown us during the exhibition, and if the Society always has as energetic and accommodating board of officers, the Plumas Co. Fairs will never prove uninteresting or unsuccessful.

The Quincy Brass Band was in attendance at the Pavilion, Stock grounds, and Race track during the Fair, and "discours'd sweet music" at the proper time and place.

The meeting of the Society closed with a ball at the Coburn House, which was well attended and passed off very pleasantly.

The list of premiums awarded which amounts to over $1,000 is published in another column.

The annual statement of the officers of the Society will be published in our next issue.

THE RACES.

FIRST DAY, Oct. 5th, 1864.—Proprietor's Purse of $100.00. Single dash of one mile: C. Marsh enters s. h. Bearegard.....1 W. Pierce, entera b. g. Pilot.....2 J. S. Gibson enters s. h. Cheroppe.....dist. Time.....1-57.

SECOND DAY, Oct. 6th, 1864.—Society's Purse of $200.00. Mile heats, best 3 in 5. J. Cochran enters b. s. Bob Lee.....1 W. Pierce enters b. g. Pilot.....2 J. C. Denison enters s. h. George.....dist. Time.....2-2.

The first and only heat was won by the b. h. Bob Lee, owing to the rider of Pilot passing on the inside contrary to the rules of the racing club. Pilot came through the polls over a length ahead, and although it was a great disappointment to the visitors upon the track, who wished to see the race contested by another trial, almost every one of them coincided with the judges in the decision in giving the race and money to Cochran's horse. A purse of over $150.00 was immediately raised upon the track, with the expectation of seeing the horses make another trial, but the owners of Pilot would not consent.

SAME DAY.—Trotting Race, best 2 in 3, for a purse of $25.00. R. Bellows enters r. m. Moll.....1 1 A. D. Headley enters s. h. Traylor.....2 2 Time.....3-26. 3-40. 3-0.

SOCIETY MEETING.—A meeting of the members of the Plumas Co. A. & M. Association, was held at the Pavilion on Saturday, Oct. 8th, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year, and the transaction of other business. Mr. John N. Blood was elected President—N. C. Cunningham, Secretary, and Rob't. Flournoy Treasurer. Messrs. J. H. Yeates, J. E. Edwards, S. Myers, D. Chapman, W. A. Bulinger, J. McElroy, M. D. Smith, R. Irwin, C. E. Smith, and E. Gifford were elected Vice Presidents. Taylorville was selected as the place for holding the next meeting of the Society. The following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Resolved, That the citizens of Lassen county be invited to attend our next Annual Fair, and to compete with our citizens for premiums.

Resolved, That a vote of thanks be and are hereby tendered to all of the officers of the society during the past year, for the energy and zeal displayed by them, and for the manner in which the affairs of the Society have been conducted while under their control.

D. R. Cate, Sec'y.

TREASON IN THE NORTH.—The exposure, by Gov. Morton, of Indiana, of the schemes and designs of the organization, known as "American Knights," is enough to cause every honest Democrat to blush with shame at being in the same boat with such a gang of traitors. Every man whose name is on the Roll, is known to be a Copperhead, and the design appears to precipitate a civil war upon the North, by Northern Copperheads, as the last card to be played in favor of the Southern Confederacy.

There is, we believe, a kindred organization in this State in Nevada Territory, but the leaders are well known and watchful, and we are confident they reckon without their host, for on the first symptom of civil war in this State, their party will be rent in twain, and they will have to leave this State, for we do not believe more than one third of their number would brook such a system of electioneering for Jeff. Davis.—On the first outbreak they will find that although the name of Democracy is powerful, yet no sensible person can be brought to believe it is necessary in California or any other loyal State, to resort to physical force for protection of life or property.

LET DOWN.—The Copperhead papers have actually got to calling the Union troops, "SOLDIERS." It is no longer fashionable with the unchanging and unchangeable Cops, to designate them as "minions of a tyrant," as "Lincoln's hirelings," "blood-thirsty wretches," "Northern sheep," &c. And it is easy to see that by the time the soldiers return after the war, the Cops will so hedge, that it will be easy then for them to call the gallant boys in the blue, "Our brave defenders." Bully for the unchangeables.

LITTLIMACKS SONG AFTER ELECTION.—"Oh, shade of the mighty, where now are the legions, who rushed to defeat when I led't them on,"—echo,—up Salt river.

CROWDED OUT.—Having promised to publish the premiums awarded by the Plumas Co. A. & M. Society, in this weeks paper, and as they occupy so much space, we are obliged to omit our Local columns, but will make up for it next week. There are several interesting "items" which deserve and shall receive due notice.

LEFT THE COPPERHEADS.—I. N. Quinn, Lieutenant Governor of this State when John G. Downey was Governor, in a late speech at San Rafael, said he intended at one time to vote for McClellan, but could not stand on the platform. He has been acting with the Copperheads, but cannot see how any patriot can go with them in their present factious opposition to the Government. He leaves them to their own destruction while he marches henceforth under the old flag and to the music of the Union.

THE SNOW.—Professor Dodds and troupe, gave three exhibitions in our town last week, which were well attended and gave good satisfaction to the audience.

IF—"If we don't elect Mickelllan we're gone up, and we ought to work and pray for his election," says Beriah, the renegade, as if God would listen to prayers for such a purpose, from such a source. The Creator don't care whether cotton is a cent or a dollar a pound; but we do believe that he don't like to see his own image, in the form of man, sold at the auction block as a "prime nigger."
